

September 2012 Newsletter

After the harvest,
the real work starts.

“Things don’t just stop when a potato is harvested, they need looking after; nurturing; taking care of them from disease and harm; all ready to go out into the world as perfect as the day they were lifted from the ground..... if not better.”

Farmers need perfect potatoes, and in turn Crop Systems can offer perfect solutions, based on their ethos that each customer and each project, like each potato, is unique.

Through thorough soil preparation, careful choice of variety to suit the land and end use, methodical planting, through to harvesting, skilled farmers and their dedicated teams ensure the best is achieved on their land. But this wealth of care doesn’t and shouldn’t stop at the potato store door.

We believe we are market leading in ensuring quality and reducing waste in potato storage, creating energy efficiency yet still maintaining the integrity of the product.

Our stores are specifically designed to high environmental standards minimising energy use by using smart control of equipment to reduce energy usage.

In addition we are also able to incorporate technology to capture the sun’s power from solar panels.

Contact us to discuss how we can achieve a long life for your potatoes and you can be rewarded by long returns.